Fifty years ago the word school had a completely different connotation than it has today. School meant five days of textbook. It was a compulsory routine designed to educate.

Today high school is a great melting pot of educational activities. The classroom is still the principle educational unit, but all activities combine to teach us how to utilize what we have learned. No more can we separate the Christmas program, math club, or the sectionals from the classroom, for they are all intricately woven to better our education.

Since our school program is one unit composed of classes, sports, events, and clubs, we arranged the first section of this book into a story of the school year. Instead of creating abrupt breaks in thought by using division pages between the various aspects of school life, we used "blend" pages. The second section is for reference material.

Not only is our educational system changing, but so is our school. Three years ago, east of Central, there was a square block of dilapidated homes. Today it is a spacious practice field. Last year the teachers' parking problem was solved by the construction of a new parking lot. Now we are in the process of the greatest change of all. Our fifty-three-year-old Central is being completely transformed from the architecture of 1905 to that of 1958.

The effect our varied educational opportunities and the reconstruction of our school has on us brings us face to face with. . .

Step by step,

Suddenly the old was going! Central began crumbling beneath sledge hammers as the Challenge of Change was put before us—and it could not be turned away.

Only part of the Old Building remained untouched—waiting; soon these halls took on the look of a construction depot.

Behind the forbidding plywood walls, areas which were once classrooms, hallways, or storage rooms began making way for a million dollars worth of new offices, laboratories, and teaching quarters.

Advancing rapidly and suddenly slowing to a near stop, construction set an awkward pace. Beams turned up in unpredictable places, strong floors had their weak spots, and by the end of the year three new blueprints had been drawn up.

There, staring students, faculty, and construction workers stark in the face, was compounded Challenge of Change.

we waited . . .

OPPOSITE PAGE: This series shows the progress of construction during the school year on the home economics room.

TOP: No one could tell by looking at this peaceful scene taken in the fall the turmoil it would encounter come spring.

BOTTOM: The new athletic field was finished this year after four years of construction.

looking for

We had to look high for a scenic in order to crop out the mess construction left on the grounds around school.

a beautiful new Central somewhere in the mess.

Sights and sounds from the air hammers, giant vacuum cleaners, shovels, and wheel barrows became familiar patterns as walls began to fall.

The work of construction began with what appeared to be a mass wrecking spree.

"That wall has to go; knock out that door jamb; take out that window; tear up the floor!"

ABOVE: The crane that put in the heating system made an interesting pattern. RIGHT: Compare the Douglas Street entrance before and after.

Though it was rugged,

TOP LEFT: Off to college we go! Larry Danner, Eddie Ermond, and Mike Kamphues are just a few who tramped to I. U.

TOP RIGHT: Room 314 serves two purposes. It is not only used for English but for a store room. Barb Hofricter, Patti Jackson, and Jerry Hill set things in order.

ve somehow survived;

Teachers and students alike were numbed and befuddled by the change in routine as they scurried like refugees for borrowed classrooms and the "catacombs." Homerooms were shuffled like a deck of cards.

Teachers ousted from their rooms during free periods floated—most of them to Room 250 where conditions were too crowded to observe. They, too, were often late to class.

Lots of us went to college at the I.U. Center. Not protected by the building as we passed classes, we were deluged by rain, chilled by snow, and entranced by the beauty of a spring day.

Cold rooms and halls made coats in class as essential as a pencil and a notebook, for the heating system was getting new pipes.

Feather dusters and shoe brushes would have been handy, but we learned to live with this discomfort as well as with a symphonic background of noise. It was a year to grin and bear it—to live and let live.

TOP RIGHT: The hall looks like a ware house. Judy Beckman, Charles Vaughn, and James Calhoun seem not to mind as they hurry to class.

MIDDLE RIGHT: There was no stage so we made one.

he Frosh through.

As if the construction problems weren't enough, the Freshmen were living in a small world of their own. The new curriculum seemed cloistered to upperclassmen; yet we saw them function as true Centralites in pep sessions and many activities.

Orientation was added to the frosh curriculum along with general science and music, while foreign languages and specific shop courses were not available to the beginners.

The program, under the supervision of Miss Emma Adams and all the freshman teachers has tried to show each person his interests and abilities so that a more specialized plan may be chosen by the individual throughout the rest of his high school years.

TOP RIGHT: "Loosen those muscles." The freshman boys are doing exercises.

Our abc's start with

The future artists are now attending classes which help the pupil stimulate his abilities by participating in creative activities offered by the various classes. They learn all forms of art and decoration as well as how to apply materials, technique, and different tools of his profession.

The art student is always willing and able to help other classes and organizations by doing the art work needed, such as publicity posters or props used in a group presentation.

Approximately 250 students are taught by the two art teachers each day.

art and business . . .

Pupils who are planning to find their niche in the business world of today can get their preparation in Central's business courses.

Not only girls take the business courses, but boys also are enrolled. Men in business are not at all rare; for they are found in president's and manager's offices and various other positions. Many a Central girl has found a position in the business world run by men.

The importance of business cannot be stressed too much. Business personnel hold some of the best jobs in our rapidly expanding society.

. . . but we couldn't learn anything without

On your mark, get set, GO! Unlike a race with all runners starting from the same point, the pupils or "runners" of English have different starting points, depending on their English training and abilities.

The background for a better English education is grammar. From that a pupil can go to higher, more enjoyable aspects of English.

On the practical side, grammar is taught to give us a greater power of expression. From books we gain enjoyment, and a functional understanding of life. A combination of these adds up to the satisfaction of effective expression.

English is our means of communication; by developing our English, we are better "runners." We are a little closer to the finish line—being a well-rounded person—when we possess appreciation for literature, a knowledge of grammar, and a developed writing skill.

Knowing our English!

OPPOSITE PAGE: "How do I love thee? Let me count the ways." Reciting poetry to Judy Davis is Bob Harris. Giving cues is Frank Barron while Earl Creech is looking on.

TOP RIGHT: Showing her students the light, Miss Ingham points out to Denzil Becker, Tony Neil, Agnes Gilmore, Ronnie Stout, and Shirley Wilson the "do's" and "don't's" of writing.

BELOW: OK Connie, answer the question: Connie Leach and Jerry Bobinette seems to be a lot faster with the answer than Mel Busse, Charles Wilt, and Nancy Arkwright.

From speech to special

Anything can happen . . . in Mr. James McFadden's speech classes. The famed "boom" may be lowered at any time. Pupils soon learn not to be surprised at anything.

Although we have fun, we learn things we will never forget. We turn out not only prize-winning students, but good citizens, too. Outside interests; our club NFL; and speech meets keep us hopping.

The speech training we receive enables us to express ourselves clearly and effectively in all walks of life.

ur classes are designed to educate individuals.

Pupils in our ungraded rooms may go as far as they wish or are able to go. Since these pupils seem to have the most difficulty in reading and math, much remedial work is given in this field. In addition, pupils may take citizenship, health, and shop.

If they stay in school and their progress seems to warrant it, they are placed in regular classes. Many earn their diplomas.

As in all classes, poor attendance and emotional instability are sometimes limiting factors to the pupil. These special classes offer helpfulness and understanding to aid pupils to progress in their school work.

TOP: "Men can cook too!" Ruth Willingham, Gloria Calland Margie Jenkins, and Barbara Hofrichter examine Paul Cook's salad with a critical eye.

BOTTOM: "Ouch! you cut my finger." Marilyn Calumba, Joyce Barton, Joyce Warfield, Shirley Walker, and Deloris Brown learn the finer points of cutting out patterns.

TOP: "Look at these pretty polka dots." Mrs. Chester watches as Shirley Walker, a student teacher, Sharon Edgell, and Joyce Warfield choose their material.

BOTTOM: "And I think I'll put this over here." says Linda Richards to onlookers Marie Fawley, Carrie Blevins, Marcia Jones, and Joan Carroll.

Every Central girl can be a domestic darling,

Who says being a housewife is easy? Our modern housewife has to be a nurse, chef, bookkeeper, grocer, seamstress, and maid. To sum it up, she must be chief cook and bottle washer—and a manager too.

In order to face the future and be a successful woman, a gal must possess patience and understanding; she must be trained in cooking, and she must know something about patching and sewing to build economical wardrobes and to mend britches. She has to be neat and know how to plan her time, menus, and budgets. She learns how to cope with these responsibilities in courses here.

Central's Home Ec. department has a curriculum designed not just for girls but for boys also. It prepares the individual for family living.

and our boys take their industrial training . . .

"It's a snap! Anyway it looks easy." Ever try to draw a simple little bolt? Sure it's easy—if you know how.

Central's training in drafting goes all the way from drawing the front, side, and top views of a square box in the freshman year to drawing the blueprint of a motor or the plans for one's own dreamhouse in the senior year.

A student may make a minor out of drafting when he takes only the basic courses in his first two years. He may go on, branching off into either mechanical or architectural thus majoring in drafting.

"It works like this," says Tom Wall to Mervin Smith. The boys are in machine shop.

Joe Collins and Jim Vettters work for a shock while Frank Bishop, Dick Messer, and Mike Straley watch.

With Mr. Fatzinger's help, Bill Jordon is learning the art of drawing. Kenny Lee studies in the background.

in some of the best

Central can boast the most complete field of industrial arts courses in the Fort Wayne area. With the use of modern up-to-date shops and equipment and with the help of well-trained instructors, boys are able to become skilled craftsmen.

Some of the shop courses which students may enter are auto, machine, wood, welding, electricity, pattern and cabinet making, and home building. In the course of his training, the student makes many projects which he may use or keep as a reminder of his years at Central. After he is graduated from Central, he can use his acquired skills in the field of industry he chooses to enter.

Every boy who enters Central has the opportunity to take at least one semester of industrial arts to learn effective utilization and appreciation of the materials, processes, services, and products of business and industry.

Central's complete program of industrial arts includes auto mechanics, drafting, electricity, machine shop, welding, wood working, pattern and cabinet making, and home building.

The handling of tools is an art for our shop boys. They learn much in the field of automation by utilizing the shop facilities which are here to give them the best in mechanical education. Modern shop laboratories with the latest up-to-date equipment and skilled and educated instructors train their boys with all the mechanical background needed to enable them to hold any specialized job in any related field.

Industrial arts offers a vocational educational program which enables the student to specialize in any one field and take as much as three hours a day of one subject. Central has the largest, complete field of industrial arts of any high school in the Fort Wayne area.

Attention critics: Our

This year of Sputniks has shown the world that science and mathematics are becoming more and more essential in our modern and fast-moving world.

Not only are science and math important in space travel—they are also important in our businesses and homes. The same calculators that trace an orbit are tracing the modern pattern of America enterprise and are projecting the challenge of more efficient operation and better products. The same scientific quest that would build a "highway" to the moon searches for a way to cook a ham in five minutes.

math and science classes are still tops,

The science and math courses at Central build the firm foundation essential to future study and offer those who would choose other fields competency in this modern age.

The Science Fair and school, city, and state math contests offer those in these studies an opportunity to test their acquired knowledge.

The true proof of the success of the math and science departments is seen in the hungry look on many of their better pupils. "I've digested trig now; what is calculus like?"

TOP LEFT: Dick Scott, Barbara Peterson, and Alice Ramsey check a specimen with the book in Biology.

BOTTOM RIGHT: Don Fankhouser watches the breaker bubble as Norm Beer prepares a disk to put over it.

Does history repeat itself? What we learn from the past has double significance when traced beneath the present. Many of the branches of the social sciences can be applied, and just as many are meant for the future scholar.

Through the study of Indiana, U.S. or World history; sociology; government; economics; or freshman orientation Central becomes a school in a city of a state in a country forced to recognize its place in the world, and we are of an era which is but a tiny piece of the story that is mankind.

Small as we are, we are citizens of Central, a community of a sort and a proving ground for our human relations of the future.

It's all a matter of perspective through a look at our lives—how we live them, how we control them, and what makes us want to live them this way.

OPPOSITE PAGE, TOP: These interested economics students are Judy McCray, Melburn Staton, Judy Bleich, Roger Sheets, and Marie Fawley.

MIDDLE RIGHT: Alice Beltran, Bill Downs, Steve Hatch, and Sandra Lykins expound on a very weighty current event in government class.

Some of us study a foreign language.

Espanol se ha anadido a la lista de las lenguas extranjerans. Or in English—Spanish has been added to the school's list of foreign languages.

Latin and French are also taught at Central. Latin is the oldest and the one most often taken by the pupils. French has been taught here for 30 years.

Foreign languages do more for a student than just teaching him a different tongue. They show him other people's way of life and their customs through the study of their everyday speech and the reading of their literature.

TOP LEFT: In gym, boys grow and develop with practice, and basketball is just one of varied activities. Shooting the ball is Jerry Williams.

TOP RIGHT: Nancy Arkwright, Mavis Goshorn, and Ondalee Gress are learning to play the game kinball. This game was created by the Central gym teachers.

We learn the ways of healthy living . . .

Health is very important in everyday life. It is a required subject as it will aid in our future success and wellbeing.

We at Central are fortunate enough to have our own man of bones, George, to study.

The physical education classes may not furnish all the exercise we need, but they point the way to better bodies and healthier happiness.

and what better way for the

GAA girls learn fellowship and sportsmanship while having fun at such sports as basketball and kinball.

They become members when they have earned 100 points by "going out" for the different activities which include tap and square dancing, tumbling, volleyball, kinball, basketball, softball, and swimming.

Most of these end in a tournament which proves which girls learn most of both sportsmanship and skill.

The girls temporarily slowed their games and tourneys to prepare their dance, "Platter Prance," January 24.

Their main project this year was the GAA Banquet. The girls spend weeks planning and preparing the menu, entertainment, and decorations.

Various honors are awarded to members on Recognition Day. They are awarded numerals after earning 400 points and a sweater when they have 2,000 points.

"Think it will fit?" asks Waveland Snider, Central's football coach, to Pete Williams, Paul Bienz, Robert Armstrong, and Herb Banet, track, assistant track, reserve basketball, and varsity basketball coach, respectively.

The fellows get plenty of coaching . . .

Central has one of the finest coaching staffs in the state. They work hard to train athletes and to keep our boys in topflight condition. If one would ask one of them about his job, he might say, "The most important thing is that the boys are willing to be coached." This attitude comes before natural ability.

Herb Banet, with the help of Waveland Snider, coached the hardwood boys through one of the finest and most exciting seasons on the Central record books. The gridironmen, under coach Snider, turned in a good season—better than usual. Lester Williams, head track coach, and his assistant Paul Bienz, did their usually fine job in pacing the boys over the cinders.

Basketball reserve coach Robert Armstrong, a member of Central's '43 state championship team, shaped up a crew that was feared by preliminary players throughout the area; and Robert Dille coached one of the best frosh teams the school has even seen. This is Coach Dille's first season at Central.

in the grueling two-mile run . . .

Central's harriers split their season with a 4-4 record. In the opener the two-milers dropped Concordia 26-29 but lost to South 21-39. Marion bested the Tigers 16-39, but Central bounced back with three straight wins over Elmhurst, Huntertown, and Concordia.

The Tiger runners dropped a triangular meet to Kokomo but bested South with a 16-56-74 score. North defeated them in the year's last meet.

Central copped second place in the sectional to send Bob Hawkins to state.

around our new oval, and through

Rain! Rain! Rain! Central's cindermen were rained out of six meets last year, leaving them only five in which to test their skill.

Central's team was much better than the record showed: it was two wins and three losses. The competition was stiff. The boys met defeat at the hands of North, South, and Kokomo, three of the best teams in the state.

There were quite a few outstanding boys on the team. Johnny Kelso was superb in the 440 and in the half-mile relay.

The half-mile relay team was among the best in Indiana. It is composed of Kelso, Jerry Burch, Andy Rivers, and Tharnell Hollins. Those boys really ran! Their fastest time was a sizzling 1:32. These four boys and Mel Patrick, who placed in broad-jumping, all qualified for the regional.

Joe Adams of Central clears the low hurdle just ahead of a New Haven runner in last year's sectional.

Down the field toward pay dirt!

Four, one, eight, six hike is a sound that is heard over and over again on the gridiron. The Tigers really had a workout this season getting a three-five record.

Central's eleven has one celebrated member, Frank Smith, senior half-back. Frank led the all-city gridiron men this season in scoring by getting seven touchdowns and one point after a touchdown for a total of 43 points.

This season is the first time in city series history that there was a three way tie for the city series championship between Central, Central Catholic, and North Side.

Fielding a winner takes

"In a cheerleader there must be traits of honesty, leadership, average grades, and most of all high morals." These are the things told to all persons trying out for cheerleading by Miss Scheumann, cheerleading sponsor.

To lead the fans in yells and to boost good sportmanship and team morale are the tasks that a cheerleader has to perform. Pep and enthusiasm must be maintained by the cheerleaders regardless of whether their team is ahead or behind. At times they find this hard to do especially when the game is tight.

lots of solid backing.

Long hours were spent making a new banner. The old banner, which has been used for over ten years, was badly torn.

A new banner made of royal blue material with white letters was made to replace the navy.

Behind the scenes, also, are the student managers. These boys are always ready and willing to be helpful in any situation. They gather laundry, take care of the balls, run errands, and do numerous other odd jobs.

They're on the job all season, making the grind aspect of participation just that much easier on our athletes. It pays in fellowship—ask the boys.

Recognition should also be given to the timekeepers, scorekeepers, and clock watchers. They, too, play an important part behind the scenes of Central's athletics.

Student managers are really on the ball at our games. Bob Hampton and Larry Reynolds are busy putting away balls that Norm Beer and Percy Moore are returning.

Good luck, team, good luck! Our reserve cheer leaders are Beckie Williamson, Leta Goodson, Carolyn France, Sharon Beerbower, Lee Juday, and Betsy Bender.

Our beginning cheerleaders are Beverly Bell, Karen Beckman, Pat McCarthy, Ann Badders, Diane Hood, Sherry Phipps, Julia Lange, and Karen Trubey.

"Practice makes perfect" . . . This saying was proven true as the 1957-58 basketball team played an impressive third straight season together.

This year's record was a very good one, 16-3; although the City Series record stood at 5-3.

Seven boys played their last season for Central. John Kelso, one of the most outstanding players in Indiana, ended his last season as a Tiger player as did Bill Boyd, Ben Hawkins, Norm Beer, Steve Hatch, Ron Brubaker, and Frank Smith. Returning next year will be juniors Don Linton and Tharnell Hollins, sophomore T. C. Williams, and freshman Willie Rozier.

The team's being together for nearly three seasons is important, for they can work together more effectively. Their season records were 9-12 the first and 10-8 the second and then jumped to the 16-3 record.

The hardwood 5 plus 7 hit a peak . . .

A fast break and a swish of the net became the trademark of guard Steve Hatch, the playmaker.

Jumpin' John Kelso took the ball off the backboards to tip it in for two points time and time again.

Don Linton drives for the basket in hopes to score at the North-Central game.

Percy Moore leaps high to dunk the ball at the North-Central game.

unexcelled in thrills, chills, and top talent.

"Hoosier Hysteria" is what some persons call it; others call it round ball. No matter what you call it, you got your share of thrills this Tiger season. There were numerous outstanding performances by all the boys on the team, but it was Johnny Kelso's brilliant consistency that won him a berth on the All-American prep team.

Every game had its thrills. Remember the first minutes of the game against the Attucks? What a thrill to see our Blue and White burn up the nets against those ever-feared Naptowners! How were you feeling at the halftime of the first game with South? Remember how fast that big lead faded? And no one was more surprised than Mike McCoy when he hooked his arm around the ball and threw it three-fourths of the floor to score.

These are just a taste of one of the most delicious seasons Central fans have digested in many a year.

BOTTOM MIDDLE: Tharnell Hollins takes aim before getting two more points for Centrals varsity squad.

BOTTOM RIGHT: And in it goes! Steve Cress sinks another bucket to add two points to the score during reserve game.

This season's freshman team, coached by Mr. Dille, had a record of 17 wins and only one loss: no one can say the freshmen weren't great. Central Catholic was the only team this season to beat the little Tigers and by a single bucket to mar their nearly perfect season.

Mr. Armstrong's reserves took the city title for reserve play. They produced a fine record of 15 wins only to lose three games. A lot of varsity material was made out on the hardwood floor.

BOTTOM LEFT: T. C. Williams is closely guarded by Logansport as he scores a long jump shot.

MIDDLE RIGHT: Norm Beer, Ron Brubaker, and Willie Rozier are as excited as the fans as they watch the final minutes to the game.

BOTTOM RIGHT: Bolvard has the ball, but Kelso is right there. Howe and Hawkins wait patiently for the chance to also get the ball.

we really had it!

This year's Sectional was a sad one for Central, but still it was a glorious event.

Central went in with a team ranked third in the state, but South Side topped us by holding the number one team. The ratings held true as South won the Sectional.

We had defeated Central Catholic and Lafayette Central 67-58 and 63-44, respectively when South tumbled us in an overtime thriller to end all thrillers, 60-56.

The overtime was literally won by the way the ball bounced, for a South Side player accidentally knocked it to a teammate in the clear who "put it in" to clinch the game.

There were good, strong teams aplenty in the Sectional. Besides Central and South, Concordia was also ranked in the state. Several powerful county schools put in their quarter's worth, too.

Many of the sport columnists repeated over and over that several of the teams in the Fort Wayne area could have gone farther had they been in another sectional.

Pep session

have never left us so keyed up before.

All sorts of odd characters appeared this year in our pep sessions. They ranged from turtles, hillbillies, spacemen, midgets, and convicts to our old friend Santa Claus. Students are prepared for anything when they enter the gym on Friday. They might see the teachers letting down their hair and playing basketball or the boys taking over cheerleading and twirling.

The student body was amazed as they watched the Booster Club land its space ship and give candy to the "Earth athletes." No pep session would be complete without the band and all its antics. Along with the band one can't forget our Marching Tigerettes who present Old Glory while we stand and sing the National Anthem.

Dances, pep sessions, and assemblies are the something special aspect that rounds out the year.

"Do unto others as you would have done unto you" was the underlying theme of the Christmas season as Central students prepared over 200 baskets of clothing, food, and toys for 30 needy families living in the Fort Wayne area.

Imagine what it would be like if there were no Caldron. A rough sales campaign brought about the first Caldron pageant last fall, an idea of Mrs. Ladonna Huntley.

Besides these and other traditional events, there were the little, unexpected things that happen to individuals and groups—the little memories that will preserve 1958 as a year unique.

events were festive; then others were serious . . .

. . . all of them were worthy of Centralites.

Central caters not only to the pupils' educational needs, but also is concerned with their physical condition. Each year a hearing test is given, and pupils find out, by means of a series of assorted "beeps" whether or not their hearing is defective.

Perhaps the most shocking, but the briefest change that this year brought to Central was the new principal for Hal-loween. He looked very stern and impressive—the only trouble was, he lacked efficiency.

An assembly for boys on the Fisher Body Company Contest was addressed by Mr. C. A. Francke.

TOP LEFT: Bonnie Weaver, Diane Snider, Karen Jacobs, Angeline Dowdell, and Duane Satamire listen closely for the "beeps" that determine how well they can hear.

These "children" singing "Lollipop" are Nita Estes, Nancy Pogue, Ann Beers, and Judy Buckel.

Singing at the vaudeville are Steve Rydell, Sally Finness, Benny Steel, Reba Hughes, McI-ford Busse.

Dust particles from the reconstruction work didn't dim the view of the audience at "Fiesta," the annual speech department's vaudeville.

Facing the challenge of change with other Central clubs, the speech department had to give much thought to the location of their presentation. Since the auditorium was unavailable because of reconstruction work, speech department members presented "Fiesta" in the boys' gymnasium.

Throwing pies, winning cakes, and eating were a few of the diversions provided by "Kalendar sh-Bang," the 1958 Sophomore Carnival.

Satisfied customers emerged from the Cake Walk as winners. For couples, the dancing corner was a favorite spot. Various weird shrieks drifted from the Spook House.

Many forms of talent were displayed in "Bewitching Hour Ball." Singers, dancers, record pantomimes, and instrumental soloists entertained those who attended it.

Another high point was the Pie Throw, in which a select group of boys were forcefully fed flour-and-water pies.

Jailhouse Rock, Calypso Capers and other themes carried off Central's dances. They ranged from the Frosh sock hop, TGIP, through the "Turtle Trot" and "Jack Frost Frolic" to the proms. Centralites kept right up with the new steps, like the stroll.

. . . while we waited for Cinderella nights.

Paris came to Central's cafeteria as the Class of '58 presented "Parisian Paradise," their Junior Prom, last May 4 from nine to twelve. Teenage beauties, glamorous in lovely pastel formals, and handsome boys in tuxedos swayed to the smooth rhythm of Herman Binkley's Band.

Dancers floated gracefully beneath silver stars and red, pale blue, and navy blue streamers, the cafeteria's Parisian sky.

A star-covered Eiffel Tower was in the center of the floor. Barbara Ballister, the prom queen, reigned on a throne guarded by a blue and silver peacock.

"December Dreamland" was an informal affair with girls in after-five dresses and the boys in suits.

A navy blue satin backdrop was covered by blue, pink, and white icicles glittering around a dancing couple.

Herman Binkley played the latest pop music for the small but happy crowd which often kicked off its shoes to jitterbug.

Students tried family

As the subject of their plays this year, the Junior and Senior classes chose lives of two different extremes.

The Senior Play, "You Can't Take It With You," was a rollicking comedy of the life of the Sycamore family. The play revolved around Alice Sycamore's played by Pat Craft, recent engagement to Tony Kirtz, son of a Wall Street business tycoon. Alice's family is a simple, eccentric, and very poor family.

The feeling of happy insanity was noticed the second the curtain was opened, for there on the stage was a printing press, pet snakes, a xylophone, a Russian ballet practice room, and the testing grounds for newly invented firecrackers.

The mother and father were played by Janet Case and Gene Aurand.

"The Family Nobody Wanted," was the story of the trials and conquests of a minister and his wife as they raised a family of mixed races.

The minister was portrayed by Mike Altekruze and his wife by Ruth Tyndall.

ABOVE: "That's my boy," says Papa (Mike Altekruze), while mother (Ruth Tyndall) is calmly looking at Donny (Jerry Gaskill) in the play "The Family Nobody Wanted."

BELOW: "Don't you see," says Pat Craft as she tries to talk to Floyd Herald in the senior play.

life in plays.

With actors, actresses, and stagehands all stacked up backstage the junior play had a handicap before the curtain went up for the first act.

"The Family Nobody Wanted" was given on a stage nobody liked. With the doors torn out, the cast of seventeen and the crew had to remain behind the set unless they were on the stage.

Even the steps were utilized. Panels were placed around them, and they became the boys dressing room. But the show must go on!

TOP: "How do you do," says Bob Tilker to Floyd Herald as Janet Case and Gene Aurand encourage a hand shake in a practice session of "You Can't Take It With You."

MIDDLE: Bob Tilker listens patiently to the whisper of Joyce Kurtz, Beverly Folk and Ann Beers are trying to listen, too.

BOTTOM: "Please don't take me," says Bob Tilker. Larry Carl tries to save him, but Mike Pearson disagrees as Bill Baldwin shouts encouragement.

Seniors chose ou

A princess with a pony tail became your first Caldron Queen when sparky, springy Pat Hawkins was elected by the Senior Class which had over 90 per cent Caldron sales.

Pat's pep is evident in her cheer-leading and in all her school life.

Fourteen beauties were nominated by the four classes, which chose Sharon Gaskill, Karen Walworth, and Carolyn Lange as the court.

first Caldron Queen!

The runners-up compose Pat's court. They are Carolyn Lange, freshman; Karen Walworth, sophomore; and Sharon Gaskill, junior.

MIDDLE: It's not that bad, Bill, Jerry Biddle, Don Baker, and Bill Baldwin look rather uninterested as Margene Gaylor does a dance in the freshman skit at the senior banquet.

BOTTOM: Bill Baldwin, Don Baker, and Ron Brubaker ponder over the ACE test.

in midst of c

As seniors walked through Central's halls, they witnessed the changing of the Old Building which they had known for three years, realizing that the reconstruction work would help future seniors.

Their senior play, which was delivered in the Circle in the Round, was "Onions in the Stew," and their banquet pictured each of their years at Central as a silhouette. Candlelight and flowers accented the decorations of miniature blue pennants.

Senior elections, which were exciting and colorful, tested the judgment of seniors as they choose their leaders. They sang the adopted song of their class, "Silhouettes," and read their class will and prophecy.

They sponsored a spirited Sectional pep session by presenting "This Is Your Life" for the typical Central fan. Yes, it had seemed as though they had been Central fans from the day they were born.

Garbed in gray robes, the deserving seniors received awards on their day—Recognition Day.

The announcement of scholarship winners was thrilling. The winners were happy because their efforts had reaped a harvest.

The impressive minutes of the Recognition services were when the seniors marched onto the field. Following the speech by the Best Girl Citizen, Margaret Nelson, the class sang "Central, Dear Central" and left.

BOTTOM RIGHT: "Thanks a lot!" says Ken Gilbert as Miss Spangler presents him with the biology plaque.

. . . but some found time

Although we are busy here at Central, not all of our time goes into studies. Memories of waving to our friends down the hall, the drive home after school, and the congregating with classmates during our lunch hour, are a few of the little things that will mean so much as they linger in our minds in later years. The quick remarks thrown at passing friends and the conversations before home room will remain to remind us of our precious moments of relaxation and personal enjoyment.

TOP: It was quite a surprise to Bonnie Betley, Dawn Mattison, Sandy Jones, Sandra Sutton, and Lee Juday to come to school and see a "for sale" sign on the lawn.

BOTTOM: We all have our troubles, and Tony Herport is no exception as he finds his tire flat. It seems quite funny to Bev Zimmerman, Nancy Winners, and Jerry Brouwer.

Plop! That's Jerry Gaskill at the Sophomore Carnival pie throw.

This is Andy's battle between the history book and no sleep the night before.

"I wheeled around the corner, and it just came off," says Mr. Ercolas.

to relax between their many responsibilities.

Enjoying themselves at the Booster Banquet are Mr. Wilson, Mrs. Spuller, and Mr. Spuller.

Doing the hoky pokey at a PTA meeting is our art teacher, Miss Hutto.

On the 'job' we share those little moments that

Anything can happen! It seems if Joe Adams and Pete Hogan are in the middle of everything at the booster pep session.

Just a friendly chat. Mavis Goshorn and Joan Teel relax in Spotlight office.

"Mmm good!" is what Miss Lebanoff seems to be saying. Mrs. Rahmer isn't quite sure.

Hips are really living! Mrs. Walworth and Mr. Dille really are enjoying themselves at a PTA meeting.

Mr. Platt, custodian, clown on Friday 13.

one can't classify . . . the fun in working.

Walla Woronchuk and Vladimer Cherniak are dancing a Ukranian dance.

Shoes everywhere! Donna Miller, Mary Jane Albert, and Don Raypole are really in a mix up as they check shoes at the freshman sock hop.

For the Booster Club it was a year of combining new ideas with old ones. The old ideas included red noses and stinging fingers, which were part of boosting the Tiger gridiron team, and selling at the basketball games. The members bought season tickets, too.

The Booster Banquet, a traditional affair, was December 8 at Cutter's Chalet. Members, dressed in their finest attire, filled the Alpine Room along with their guests.

A rhyme and a box of candy are essentials of the club's Valentine Pep Session. The space satellites that were front-page news had nothing on the club; the Boosters covered 3,680,000,000 miles in an hour and a half. They took time at each planet to stop and give a skit for the students and candy to the athletes.

The Booster Dance, "Sham-Rock" featured the "Continentials." With their money the club purchased a new "Fighting Central" banner.

The new idea this year was reorganization. Six standing committees were formed with a council member as chairman of a committee. Each member was on one committee.

The busy Boosters work home games,

TOP: "Don't rush me! You'll get your coke." Booster members Judy Zimmerman and Jeanie Imbody tote cokes at the North Side Gym.

TOP RIGHT: The Doodlebugs make many signs to boost the school. Bill Downes, Don Linton, and Roger Ember are hanging a sign telling the team to scalp those "Redskins."

BOTTOM RIGHT: Steve Hatch and Bill Thomas conduct the Doodlebug meeting. Both of them seem to be deep in thought.

as the Doodlebugs offer renewed backing.

A club strictly for boys is called the Doodlebugs. The boys, without any assistance from the fair-haired girls, have done a great deal since they were first organized this year with Mr. Tricolos advising. They boosted the Caldron and Spotlight sales, helped the athletic office sell season basketball tickets, and kept the spirit of the student body high by leading them with their boisterous cheering. They often followed the team to distant quarters of Indiana. Hardly a pep session went by without Bill Downes and the Doodlebugs having a sign wishing the team good luck brightening the walls.

During Christmas vacation the Doodlebugs and Letterman's Club presented "Holiday Hop." Everyone appeared to have a rocking time. Well, who said this is a woman's world? The "Boys" don't agree.

President Gary Corson leads Ed Saylor, Lonnie Pelz, Ella Kohls, Roger Sheers, Jean Mapes, and Linda Gaskill in a discussion over one of the many topics concerning the past school year.

Barney Bell, Mary Jane Frederick, Pat Craft, Bonnie Betley, Jack Barker, Margaret Nelson, Marsha Reed, and Mel Staton watch as Mr. Still and Mr. Spuller plant a tulip tree on Arbor Day.

Student government is no small job.

"Our family has a mother, father, two boys, and a girl; and our room will combine with two other home rooms." So starts the Student Council's main function of the year, the Christmas Basket Program.

This year 33 families were represented in a cross of over a hundred baskets of food, toys, and gifts.

The Student Council is more than this; it is the body that represents the students in all of the classes. It is the common ground for deciding over-all problems of the classes.

Organized for the purpose of furthering athletics, good sportsmanship, and worthy activities, the Varsity Club is made up of boys in varsity sports. Their annual dance this year was "Holiday Hop" in December.

and the Marching Tigerettes display their

TOP: Our Marching Tigerettes are Sharon Price, Joyce Suke, Bev Tabar, Bonita Scheppele, Barbara Ballister, Carolyn Krudop, Bonnie Betley, Judy McCray, Alice Ramsey, Diane Rogan, Barbara Morton, Judy Leffler, Mary Phillips, Bobbie Jean Thomas, and Nancy Arkwright.

BOTTOM: "How much?" asks Bill Thomas as he purchases a pin from Bev Tabar and Judy McCray.

The marching Tigerettes have pranced through a highly enjoyable season, stepping their way through pep sessions, performing during half-time, and following the big brass band in parades.

Clever acts and impressive costuming have kept the fans out of the halls during halftime to watch original Central choreography.

Many a clever march this year has adopted popular steps like "strolling" across the court.

Behind all the polish there is,

talents during athletic season halftimes.

Practicing to make perfect are the beginning twirlers, Berry Waltenburg, Ruth Sprinkle, Carolyn Rose, Carol Houser, Pat Watson, and Rochelle Tieman.

by all means, elbow grease. Prospective twirlers must pass a five-week testing period, and by that time, they must pass a twirling test.

They are not the beautiful, dumb type either. They are required to maintain good grades.

The Marching Tigerettes are under supervision of Mrs. Edna Chester and Mr. Elbert Stodden. Judy McCray has led the twirlers as drum majorette for two years.

The girls' highlight of the year is their annual club picnic. This outing takes place in one of the city parks. At this time the next year's officers are announced.

It's time for a rest from twirling as Central's Marching Tigerettes cease marching and listen to Joyce Snoke and Bonita Scheppele.

Sing, sing, sing. The mixed quartet is Bill Isenhour, Walla Woronchuk, Alma Gray, and Vladimir Cherniak.

The flowing, blue satin gowns and mid-night blue tuxedos in which the choir has appeared this year give little suggestion of the "elbow grease" exerted to earn the attire. Each month this gorgeous group rolled up its sleeves with some new project to pay for the new outfits.

It was while performing, showing the fruits of their daily rehearsals, that they desired to look their best. Under the direction of Miss Verda Mae Ziegler, they have always sounded as pretty as they now look. They participated in three concerts for parents and students.

The group lent its army of voices to the Thanksgiving and Christmas programs, and during the latter season brightened the crisp air of the Summit City with songs from the Lincoln Tower. Special groups and outstanding soloists came forth from the group to perform and to win superior ratings in district and state musical contests. Talent, hard work, and striking appearances—a year of song cloaked in beauty.

...and our Band represents us in snappy form!

As up to date as the world itself; that's our band. Jazz, rock and roll, and classics are all familiar and well-done.

Besides taking part in school activities, such as pep sessions and concerts, the band participates in city, county, and state music contests.

One of the band's main projects of the year is its annual candy sale. Money received from the sale is used for a band trip.

Introduced this year, through the pep sessions, games and concerts were "Mangoes," "Raunchy," "Diana," and "Sugartime"—just a few of the most popular melodies of the year.

The Dance Band's latest rocks us . . .

A late season started with "September In The Rain" featuring the Dance Band in November.

The Dance Band, directed by Mr. Stodden, bought back to life old timers that were once popular and have never quite faded away. Some of these songs were "Once In a While," "Stardust," "Blue Jean Blues," and "Tuxedo Junction."

Early morning practices made for tops in pops at pep sessions, The annual Speech Vaudeville, and other events.

Practicing under the direction of Mr. Stodden are Jeanette Hendricks, Sharon Rose, Joyce Miller, Donna Kowalczyk, and Bruce Marquart.

NFL speaks up— and in rare form!

"The competition is tough, but we pull through in good shape," might well be a composite quote from some National Forensic League members this year. When Mr. McFadden says, "Let's get this show on the road," we like to pool our individual talents and get it done—effectively.

N.F.L. members attend many speech meets, and they are justifiably proud when the judge's frequent decision is "First Place."

The "take home" average is represented by the trophies copped in the New Haven, Howe, Peru, and Purdue Center meets.

The annual Vaudeville show and the N.F.L. dance get lots of the group's attention.

Some of us lend a helping hand.

The service workers met trying situations, smiled, and kept working. They came face to face with the real problems as changes began.

There was much drilling, welding, and tearing down in the library. It was not uncommon to see men walking up and down ladders and yelling, "Hey, Joe! Over a little farther!" There was dust, dust, and more dust.

Some persons might have given up. Mrs. Vallence, librarian, and her girls donned aprons and cleaned up the room.

At their Christmas party the service workers played games, listened to records, and exchanged gifts. The next morning they continued their duties accompanied by the pounding of hammers and the buzzing of drills.

We get a taste of tomorrow's job.

Brr! It was cold at the "Jack Frost Frolic." The FBLA dance was one of the major events of the year. Another project of the club was the trip to Muncie for a business convention. A tradition of the club is to invite former members back to give talks.

Miss Heal, adviser, and officers; Nancy Wolf, Judy Maples, Dianne Sparks, Bev Zimmerman, and Judy Gunter have worked hard to encourage interest toward business occupations among the students of Central.

Teacher for a day! Marcia Jones, president, acts as teacher as she leads a FTA discussion. Marcia apparently has already mastered the art of projecting; note the eager hands in the rear, ready to answer her question.

How is the outlook for tomorrow's teachers?

"In our hands lies the future." These words are imbedded in every FTA member's mind. The Rosza O. Tonkel Future Teachers of America Club has as its purpose the gaining of a broad knowledge of the teaching profession, its cultivation and its important role in our democracy.

The club advisers, Mr. Stech and Miss Jackson, are showing Marcia Jones, Elizabeth Arnold, and Carolyn Lange the latest information on teaching methods.

Among the group's activities this year were movies, special speakers, and skits all planned to point out the duties and problems of teaching. The high point of the year found a Central delegation attending the Annual Northeastern Regional Meet. FTA sponsored the dance, "Hearts and Darts" on Valentine Day.

Dues! Paying their dues are Bob Tilker, Carol Norris, Judy Buckel, and Minnie Benson. Janet Case collects with a miserly look.

Appreciation of art is sought by many . . .

One doesn't have to be a Picasso or a Grandma Moses to belong to the Art Club. With one of the most active programs in the school, the club has offered variety and details to hold the interest of even the most faintly interested as well as the avid art student.

With movies, such as the "Life of Christ" in woodcuts; speakers, such as Miss Nielsen who showed films on her European trip; excursions like the one that introduced the group to local artist James McBride; the annual bus trip; and a party and a picnic—they have woven a successful year in extra curricular art. As usual, its members made outstanding showings at exhibits.

Nature lures us,

The colors of the autumn leaves and the peekings of green in the spring are wonders of nature that are enjoyed by the members of the Biology Club.

Once every month the club meets to talk over various topics of nature. Some of these meetings are spent on field trips to a park or woods to observe.

This year their most outstanding event was the trip to Turkey Run State Park. The members went horseback riding and on nature tours. Picnic lunches were carried along.

Bill Isenhour collects ballots to run off a tie for other offices. Wondering about the results are Pia Raudsep, Carolyn France, Rose Kamm, Lois Olson, and Gay Lambert.

as does society's past and present.

Anthony Wayne Club's famous, fear-inspiring initiations are never forgotten. The initiates soon learned, though, that the special speakers, projects, and fun, compensated for any "bruises" or charcoal smudges from initiation.

One special speaker to whom we listened was the curator of a local museum. In other meetings we saw films on Washington and the restoration of Williamsburg.

We portrayed a courtroom scene in the annual Mock Trial, another AWC tradition. This year Carolyn France was found not guilty of jay-walking across Lewis Street.

We rounded off our exciting year with a field trip to Turtle Town.

Mr. Richards is our club adviser.

Miss Ridgway and Miss Plumanns plus approximately 50 students, divided by hard work, times good programs and fun equal Central's Math Club. Here is where our interested math students struggle with x and y, bisect and trisect, and multiply for entertainment.

A Math Club program always includes a student speaker or an outside speaker. One of the most enlightening was Dr. G. N. Wallan, who is a mathematics professor at Purdue Extension.

Last October the Math Club went to the Purdue campus at Lafayette; they also sponsored the dance, "Leprechaun Leap."

Musicians scale their way to top . . .

Shaky knees begin the experience of the Modern Music Makers, commonly known as the Three M's.

To become a member, one must be a sophomore, have a B average in Band, and a C average in all his other subjects.

The Three M's have two initiations; the first is informal and the initiates have to play solos and prove themselves worthy. The second initiation is formal, and the officers each have a verse to say; pins and cards are given to the new members.

Voices over this transmitter have been heard all over the world. This is the club's pride and joy.

"Break, break, this is station W9GHA." Thus another contact is scissored in between the hundreds of stations competing for points in the American Radio Relay League Field Day.

Last June the Central crew "headed for the hills" and set up shop in the woods west of town. Scores were compiled according to the number and distance of the contacts made. Central's club has scored in the upper third of the stations in its group for several years.

While waiting for field day, the Radio Club is one of the most useful groups in school—always on the job with miles of wires for every occasion.

Press Clubbers let off tension

A slow start led to a wild ending for the Press clubbers. To recruit new members, requirements for entry were lowered to 1500 points.

After a successful Christmas party in the publications offices, the group wound up the year with their breakfast, a razz banquet, and a final fling. The razz banquet, a new twist at Central, which took the school's "big wheels" to task in a good-natured way, is standard journalist fare.

TOP RIGHT: With food and Mary Jane's mouth the publications could have a party anywhere.

Working under adverse conditions has brought many new problems for the National Thespian Troup 662. Nevertheless, the handicaps that have arisen from the fact that we have had no stage this year have enabled us to try an idea new at Central—a Greek theater in the round.

This year we have produced two one-act plays. "The Dress" was written by the Thespian troupe at the beginning of the year. It was the third one-act play we had written in two years.

One of the most memorable incidents of our year was the performance of "The Other Wiseman," the Christmas play. Never before had we stood on a stage with people sitting on all sides. It was terrifying; but after the first cold shock died away, we realized the audience was literally in our hands.

The theater in the round has proved to be an interesting experience in that we have developed new techniques, including some in staging and lighting.

Many display their talents on the stage.

while friendship is sought by many.

Friendship Club has had alterations this year in the form of new organization and a new sponsor, Miss Doris Pribble.

The organization has become a club for freshman girls exclusively. The club has a membership of 30 girls who meet twice each month.

The Friendship Club's projects this year have been selling senior name cards, potato chip sales, and making scrap books for the children's ward of a local hospital.

Other activities of theirs were a splash party, a picnic, a Christmas party, interclub counsel activities, and a city-wide Y-Teen record hop.

All wasn't so easy for your 1958 Caldron staff,

It has often been stated that a publication is like a three legged stool. Each part of it depends on the other two. This can apply to a yearbook also—its three legs being editorial, business, and photography.

The business staff plays "Uncle Scrooge" for the book deciding how much can be spent, and it handles the money. The meticulous task of taking care of the sales records also falls under their control.

The click of the shutter is highly important to the Caldron, for every picture in the book has been the responsibility of the photographers.

but the famous school spirit helped it up . . .

TOP LEFT: The job of the Caldron editor is anything but a picnic. Nancy Eicher crops pictures for the book.

TOP RIGHT: Money was a problem this year, but Bonnie Betley, manager, saw us through.

The credit for the unseen work done for the Caldron goes to the business manager, who drove herself to near insanity keeping office records in order during the moving. The other "hair tearing" job is that of the editor. Her long hours spent were all forgotten when the Caldron was revealed. Under the editor is the copy staff. Thousands of words flowed from their pens to give us our '58 Caldron.

and almost over the year's economical rough spots.

TOP RIGHT: Glue fumes and late hours are both a part of art editor Nancy Whited's job, but she smiles in spite of it.

The hundreds of pictures in the Caldron did not just fall into place. Behind each picture is a person who sees that the picture is taken, one who decides where it will go, one who pastes it in the Caldron dummy, the printers, and the engravers. The first three are the jobs of the editor, picture editor, art editor, and the senior editor. The staff sounds large, but each picture in this book required more than two hours of individual work.

Out of the salt mines; then into the sand pit

That's the way to count, boys, Bob Bontempo, ad manager, is pointing to Spotlight sales figures while Steve Pearson and Kieth Manguiss tabulate them.

This book says—Donna Miller, Mary Albert, Judy Farr and Carol Vaubel are checking figures in Spotlight books.

The challenge of change brought new quarters and a new adviser to the publications.

Because reconstruction started in the south end of the building where the publications originally were, the Spotlight furniture, books, and other materials had to be moved.

Spotlight workers gladly lended their muscles to move the equipment. First everything was moved upstairs to the north end of the third floor. Next it was moved back down to the basement in the north end. Still another move was necessary in the spring.

The Spotlighters were met by a dull and dreary atmosphere. They soon changed this situation by hanging gay posters in the rooms. Yet, as one looked around, the drabness and dreariness was still present.

The four heads! Janet Geiseking, Marcia Jones, and Jeanine Imbody, editors, are skimming the finished product.

MIDDLE: "Plenty of green stuff." Taking money for Spotlight are business managers Barbara Pearson, Pat Craft, and Mary Jane Frederick.

BOTTOM: "We see that things are run right on the business side," say Janice Slaughter, Nancy Small, and Myra Howard.

This year finances were not plentiful for any Central organization; the Spotlight has not been an exception. The responsibility of making ends meet has rested entirely on the business staff's shoulders.

The pressure was a little too much for some, but the majority kept the Spotlight going.

With the sales of the second semester low, more of the upkeep was shifted to the ad staff which always came through. Managers and members of the sales, records, and distribution staffs had to pitch in also.

TOP: The Spotlight has a meeting. Marcia Jones shows a newspaper to a very interested and happy editorial staff.

MIDDLE LEFT: Many a paper would have met its fate if it hadn't been for Marcia's student advising.

BOTTOM LEFT: The final say passes through the jaws of the person in front. The one in the back is somewhat mute. Mr. Tone is the adviser of the Spotlight and the Caldron.

. . . to publish their guiding light for the Several six-page and two eight-page Spotlight's were the result of long hard hours put in by the Spotlight's editorial staff.

With the change of advisers and officers, Spotlight workers had a hard time adjusting.

The paper is started on Monday with tips for stories and assignments for writers. Tuesday notes are sent to the writers informing them of their stories, and stories start coming in on Wednesdays.

Thursday the stories really start rolling; they are corrected, given headlines, and sent to the press. Friday is like Thursday only with more rush.

Monday the stories that couldn't come in Friday are copyread and sent to the press. Thus, the circle is already started for the next week.

Al Metel, photographer, seems to be bothering Pat Bell, Judy Zimmerman, Donna Kowalevsk, and Joan Teel.

No matter what problems arise, there is someone at Central to help you handle them. Difficulties of all kinds are settled by our advisers. Mr. Spuller, the deans, Mrs. Watson, and the guidance directors are the ones who apply "oil" to eliminate the friction.

Our principal became the hub of "normal" problems plus those 1,001 headaches that settled with the dust of reconstruction. They were "cleaned up" as smoothly as conditions permitted.

Door prizes galore can be found at the P.T.A. carnival Mrs. Robinette, Miss Acker, and Judy O'Brien see that everything is in order and ready to go.

"That's next year's Central," says Mr. Ray Dahlgren, architect, to Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Dolin and Mrs. Vincent Wells.

Mrs. Cletus Deck, treasurer, Mrs. William Gaskill, vice president, Mrs. Arthur Rose, secretary, and Mrs. Donald Sparks, president, go over the blueprints of the school with Mr. Spuller, principal.

The Rev. E. E. Petznick, of the First Evangelical United Brethren Church, is speaking to the parent education group last October. This meeting was one of a series given this year.

... and we hope they keep right on improving!'

The P. T. A. Potluck was a big success! Teachers, parents, students, children, and babies, alike, all enjoy themselves at this annual affair.

With whom does the future of the 1400 pupils at Central High School lie? Naturally, a good share of this responsibility lies in the hands of Central's 65 teachers.

It is hard to realize the hard work that it takes to be a teacher. Along with their regular classes they also spend much time at club meetings, basketball games, pep sessions, and dances. They also possess an extra supply of patience and understanding. They needed it this year.

We at Central are lucky to have this busy, capable group, which includes our principal, deans, and teachers working for our wellbeing.

They can't "kid" us; one can't say, "goodbye," to Central. "So long," maybe, when starting that well-earned life of leisure; but even then there is much to hold them to what is and has been Central. So, so long, Miss Ingham and Mr. Wilson; best of luck to you in your new ventures!

Our custodians are heroes of the year.

Efficiency and friendliness are characteristic of our custodians. Many students have found themselves being proud and thankful that the janitors are around when they find themselves locked out of a room or in need of a helping hand.

The janitors have had an extra hard job this year with the building in such a state of chaos. Moving desks and other heavy articles from one room to another, sometimes from the first floor to the third floor, takes plenty of patience as well as brawn.

The delicious odor of food waiting to be eaten reveals to the students that the cooks are busy at work, preparing the noon meals. There is no need to worry for they are always on time.

From early morning to late at night our custodians are busy at work making things nice for us.

MIDDLE LEFT: Our cooks are Mrs. Rehling, Mrs. Meyers, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Meshberger, Mrs. Dalzell, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Euber, Mrs. Wagner, Mrs. Kerns, Miss Schoenemann, and Mrs. Cox.

BOTTOM RIGHT: "This is where my money goes," says Prestan Chaney as he pays Mrs. Kerns. Mrs. Meshberger is at the other cash register.

Seniors are putting on finishing touches.

While the workers are busy changing the tangible structures of our school, the senior class is adding the finishing touches to the structure they have built during their years of high school.

Throughout these busy years the senior class has been guided by the surveying eyes of the class sponsors. Just as the transit guides the surveyer, the sponsors advise the student as to the paths he should take.

The class congress is the draftsman of the school. At the congress meetings they determine the plans for the social activities and draw the blue prints for the students to follow.

The class officers are the engineers who administer the policies of the class. They interpret the blue-print and see that the plans are carried out.

TOP RIGHT: The senior class officers, Steve Hatch, vice president; Jessie Minor, secretary; and Norm Beer, president, keep in touch by telephone.

BOTTOM RIGHT: It took Mr. Todd and Miss Keegan, advisers, to make the senior class function well.

The highest honors at Central go to Jessie Minor, valedictorian, and Wesley Shoe, salutatorian. Jessie's average is 95.09, and Wesley's average is 92.79.

Jessie, Wesley, and Mike earned top honors.

For honesty, dependability, service, and leadership, Jessie Minor and Mike Altekruze received the best citizen trophies this year.

Twelve scholars and leaders were named.

Why are we here? To learn—to lay the foundation for a happy, useful life—we study. The fruits of scholarly work are exemplified each year by those seniors whose four-year grade averages are 90 per cent or better. The above five seniors have achieved this top honor.

We also learn to lead. The eleven seniors below were named to the National Honor Society as examples of truly fine scholarship, character, and leadership.

Jerry Gaskill, president; Metrice Beachem, secretary; and Jim Snyder make plans for the Junior Prom.

Assembly line! Jim Snyder, Jean Clark, Carolyn France, Sharon Beerbower, and Ruth Tyndall work on prom decorations.

Meticulous planning made junior events tops.

The junior class with its sponsors, Mrs. Huntley and Mr. Fatzinger, had this year as its main event the junior prom.

Preparation was started early in the year, to make their prom "one of the best ever." As a theme, the juniors chose "Atlantis." A large octopus, a sea horse, large and unique fish, and a shell-shaped throne highlighted the decorations and established a romantic underworld.

"The Family Nobody Wanted" was the title of the junior play. A large, eye-catching bulletin board was used for publicity. The play was a huge success.

"Junior Prom in the Ozarks," the junior pep session, and numerous other small projects made the year an eventful one.

Next year I'll finally be an upperclassman!

The shrieks of delight were heard in preparation for the Sophomore Carnival, February 22, 1958. The annual event was not lacking the humor, variety, and noise that accompanies any class project. Kalendar SH-BANG, the carnival, went over with one!

Besides the carnival, the sophomore class has taken part in two pep sessions and made signs for pep sessions and basketball games.

The class officers are Steve Cress, President; Dale Boone, Vice President; and Sue Beerbower, Secretary. The sponsors are Miss Brown and Mr. Dornte.

Central's first set of freshman officers had busy jobs leading a livewire class through a series of successful activities. They are Doug Deal, vice president; Sue Davis, secretary; and Bob Bailly, president.

Green in the fall? The Freshmen may have been green in September, but they ripened quickly. The class rescued a long-lost tradition: for the first time in 10 years the Frosh were represented by officers. Bob Bailly, president; Doug Deal, vice-president; and Sue Davis, secretary, won out.

Under the guidance of Miss Connie Standish and Mr. George Tricolos, advisers, the class party, a sock hop, was a big success; and the T.G.I.P., Thank Goodness I Passed, dance was even more impressive. The Frosh topped the honor roll their first semester here.

"Sink South," "Clip C.C.," and "Edge Those Irish" slogans, which boosted basketball fever, were made and sold by the class. The profit lowered the price of what was considered the most important Frosh project, the bus trip to Richmond. This was followed by Central's first Freshman pep session.

All that this class has done this year seems to say, "Watch us grow!"
